America for the Americans. One method of realizing it was to keep all work within

REPUBLICAN victory in the coming election would retard for a long time the progress of the sound commercial doc-trines that underlie the commercial greatness of Great Britain and alone maintain hiritish ascendancy. —London Evening News.

IN 1800 it was a conflict of predictions; new our adversaries must face trade stat-istics and prices current.—Prendent Harrison,

Entertainment for Senator Faulkner. Two years ago the New York World came out with a bold and startling scheme of wicked Republicans to bring into West Virginia colored laborers, who were to make their homes here and in due course of time exercise the electoral franchise, the presumption being that as they were black they would vote the Republican ticket. These colored men and their families, it was represented, desired to leave North Carolina and settle in a state where they could have fair play. One Lindsey, a North Carolinian, was to locate them. Lindsey interested cer-tain Republicans enough in the enterprise to secure letters from them wishing him success

The New York World and the Register echoing its indignation shouted themselves hoarse about a scheme to "colonize" and "africanize" West Virginia. It was the most utterly devilish scheme they ever heard of, and anybody so base as to be a party to it or to take even the smallest interest in it was an object worthy of execration, and so they proceeded to execrate every Republican to whom Lindsey had explained his plan or with whom he had had any correspondence on the subject. When Whitehead, Lindsey's personal representative, committed suicide in Charleston, they denounced these same Republicans as having driven the man to his death, overwhelmed with shame and remorse for the part he had played in the dark conspiracy. There were certain features about this so-called exposure which created a suspicion that there never was any real

West Virginia. The story had about it the earmarks of a "put-up job." question was, who put up the job and how was it worked? It has taken some time to get at the bottom of this business, but the INTELLIGENCER has at last sounded that depth and in its news column to-day will be found some of the most interesting reading ever submitted to the people of West Virginia, for that matter to any community. Here we have a distinguished West Virginian, senator of the United States, interested most of all in the election of a legislature that will continue him in the United States senate, and incidentally interested in his party's success, conspiring to create the semblance of a state of affairs which in his own good time he would denounce as a monstrous assault on the people of West Virginia.

In letters to Senator Faulkner Mr. Lindsey reminds him of his contract to pay in cash and in office for a service rendered, which service was to entrap Republicans in the enterprise. Lindsey reminds Senator Faulkner of the scheme of deception they were both playing on the people of West Virginia, quoting Senator Faulkner as admitting that he, Lindsey, had performed his part of the contract and asks Mr. Faulkner whether he will, as a United States senator, do less. Co-operating with Senator Faulkner were other Democrate including Phil Thompson, at that time secretary of the Democratic Congressional committee, through whom Lindsey received part of his pay.

It is significant that there are no letters from Senator Faukner. He was too shrewd a fox for that. He operated through Thompson, through Syme, his private secretary, and with Lindsey in person, by word of mouth. This left him free to deny anything he ever said to Lindsey and to repudiate the terms and payments made by Thompson and his own private secretary. The evident ease with which Senator Faulkner and his friends obtained the Republican letters, the whole story of the alleged Republican scheme, was at the time extremely suspicious. Suspicion now gives way to the complete and convincing statement of fact.

If Senator Faulkner had acted in all faith with Lindsey to the end, had paid him all the money he had promised to pay him and made the appointment which he promised to make for him, so that Lindsey might derive $50.00 a month through it; or if he had compromised as Lindsey had proposed for so much in cash and the employment of two horses and carts under the government of the District of Columbia, he might have secured from Lindsey all evidence of the deal, closed his mouth and kept the people of West Virginia for ever in ignorance of the plot in which he was engaged to deceive them. Senator Faulkner has the reputation of being a shrewd politician. In this case it will be plain to the dullest comprehension that he has overreached himself. The people of West Virginia will now see that Senator Faulkner first conspired to invent an issue and then went on the stump to meet this issue of his own manufacture, and Candidate McCorkle and the rest of them are trying to profit by the same scurvy device.

A more shameless trick has never been resorted to by any politician of any grade in this country.

It Ends Senator Faulkner.

Senator Falkner thought he was so deep down in the scheme to "colonize" and "africanize" West Virginia that he could never be dug out. It is true that he has been extricated in a very damaged condition, but he is located at last, and from to-day the people of West Virginia will behold him in a new and strange light.

Our deliberate conviction is that Senator Faulkner has ended himself in West Virginia politics. It has been well understood that the election of a Democratic legislature meant the re-election of Mr. Faulkner to the United States senate. Doubtless he could be re-elected if he had a Democratic legislature back of him, but with Mr. Faulkner and his political jobbery as issues in the campaign, there will be no Democratic legislature to elect him. There are too many thoughtful and decent Democrats in West Virginia for

He May Retire and Reform. Now that Senator Faulkner sees it all spread out before him and has time to reflect, it must strike him as a horrid nightmare. After to-day he can no longer fool the people of West Virginia.
The talented senator is henceforth a dead cock in the pit. His action will be resented by many of his own party, because there is intelligence enough in that party to know that this "colonizing" and "africanizing" job will be resented by the decent people of all parties. The Democratic party is gone in West Virginia, and the too-smart sens-tor has helped to wipe it out. We desire to bow our acknowledgements to the senator and to remind him that it is never too late to reform. In the quiet of private life he may do works mete for repentence. But he will not go back to the United States senate any more.

Some men uphold the doctrine that everything is fair in war and in politics. Some other men are above some things in politics. To Senator Faulk ner's mind any device seems to be welcome so long as it will help him to hold his seat in the United States senate. This is a fair inference from the part he played in the job to fill West Virginia with slarmists cries about "colonizing" and "africanizing" the state. Of course the accomplished senator never expected to be caught at it, but this is no apology.

WHEN Hoadly was Democratic gov ernor of Ohio he recommended "mixed schools" for that state. The constitution of West Virginia prohibits "mixed schools.' Democratic politicians have intent to locate these colored men in | been playing "mixed schools" along with the "foace" bill ghost. They think the people of West Virginia are mostly

WHEN Grover Cleveland was governor of New York he signed a bill providing for "mixed schools" in the city of New York. The constitution of West Virginis prohibits "mixed schools," yet the Democratic politicians who support Cleveland declare that the Republican party intends to open the schools of West Virginia to white and black alike. These politicians ought to begin to hurrah for Cleveland and "mixed schools." That would be a ringing campaign cry.

SENATOR FAULKNER is a member of the senate committee of the District of Columbia. This committee forms, in fact, part of the government of the District of Columbia. In part payment of his scheme of "colonizing" and "africanizing" West Virginia he was to have the chief operator get a job for two horses and carts under the district government. "Public office is a public trust," says Grover Cleveland, and Senator Faulkner likes to quote this from Mr. Cleveland.

THE Eighth ward Republican meeting on Saturday night was a splendid success. The speech of Mr. Frederick William Holls, delivered in German, was one of the best ever heard here. The synopsis, published to-day in English, falls far short of doing it justice. No free trade speaker will answer Mr. Holls, no matter how many of them

WHEN Senator Faulkner makes his next speech on the "foace bill," "nigger domination," "mixed schools," the "colonization" and "africanization" of West Virginia, he ought to tell his hearers frankly why he thought it necessary to concect the scheme which he has since been so fiercely combatting. The people will be glad to hear him on this subject.

Ir is a wonder that Senator Faulkner and Phil. Thompson, then secretary of the Democratic congressional committee, could look each other in the face while they were fixing up the job to "colonize" and "africanize" West Virginia. Isn't this a pretty dish for a United States senator to set before the people he represents?

SENATOR FAULENER and the rest of them have been preaching high morals in politics. Read the story of Senator Faulkner's ideal politics and then judge what the able senator has been up to while he has been posing before the people as a saint. Mr. Faulkner, you won't do. You are too smart.

WONDER whether Senator Faulkner ever shed a tear of remorse over the sad fate of his representative White head, who drowned himself in the Kanawha River. Whitehead was carrying out Mr. Faulkner's scheme to "colonize" and "africanize" West Virginia.

"HE that diggeth a pit shall fall therein." Mr. Faulkner, you dug it deep, you lie at the bottom of it, and the people of West Virginia will pile the clods in so that you will never emerge again into political life. There is no ressurrection for a dead body of this kind.

Ir must have flattered Senator Faulk ner's pride when Lindsey was writing to him about their joint "scheme of deception" to be practiced on the people of West Virginia. No Conspiracy, No Low-Dow Politics!

AH THERE! Senator Faulkner! What are your present views concerning the "colonization" and "atricanization" of West Virginia? Can't . you give us a few able speeches on this live topic?

COL, HOOTEN'S MEETINGS. Doing Effective Work in Taylor County. Republicans Aroused.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.

GRAFTON, W. VA., Oct. 23.—The past week has been one of unusual activity in the Republican ranks of Taylor county. The county being small and the party united it has been the custom the party united it has been the custom to have short campaigns, and this year is not an exception. The Republicans have had with them this week Hon. J. E. Hooten, of Moundaville. Accompanied by W. H. Lippencott, chairman of the county committee, the colonel has visited and held large and enthusiastic meetings at Pruntytown, Haymonds, Fetterman, Knottsville, Thornton, Tyrconnel and Simpson, speaking twice a day. Thomas E. Davis, the candidate for governor, was present at the last day. Thomas E Davis, the candidate for governor, was present at the last two named places and delivered a short address at each place.

Possessing the happy faculty of addressing himself to all classes in a most appropriate and effective manner the arguments of the colonel have had much weight with our people, both Republicans and Democrats, and will have a telling effect on the result of the campaign.

Republicans here appreciate very much the efforts of Mr. Hooten, and have arranged to have him come to Grafton later in the campaign.

He left here on Saturday and spends the coming week in Doddridge county.
